

Syracuse University

College of Arts & Sciences

Writing Studies, Rhetoric, and Composition

Minor in Professional and Technical Writing

The Department of Writing Studies, Rhetoric and Composition is excited to announce a new minor in Professional and Technical Writing available to all students. It's a perfect minor for those pursuing a career in healthcare, law, science, technology, business, and government. The PTW minor is also a great fit for adult learners who wish to supplement their degree with a professionally-oriented qualification, and any student pursuing a career in technical writing/communication.

As a PTW minor, you'll learn how to clearly and accurately communicate complex information to a variety of specialized audiences. You'll create usable, accessible publications and websites. The PTW minor will help you develop written, visual, and oral documents and publications as well as learn how they are used in local, national, and international contexts.

To learn more, please contact us at writing@syr.edu or visit our course catalog.

