

Production Portfolio (Abridged)

This portfolio is a resource on the various video options for instructors to use for their online courses.

Video Recordings

Video recorded lectures can be more than just an instructor talking to a camera. This guide showcases a collection of diverse video recording options that can be used to effectively communicate your course content.

In order to achieve some of these video options, there needs to be substantial planning. Pre-production is the planning phase prior to the recording date. In this phase, the production team will need specific materials and details in order to execute the production successfully.

In this guide, you will see examples of the different video options, a description of the recording process, a list of materials needed from the instructor, and a timeline of deadlines for the materials.

- 1\) Studio recordings: standard lecture
- 2\) Role play, therapy sessions and demos
- 3\) Animation
- 4\) Online Recording
- 5\) Screen Recording
- 7\) On-Location
- 8\) Scribe Tool
- 9\) Virtual Interviews